An interesting tutorial at our January meeting as Duane Hill spoke about lathe maintenance. We learned about cleaning surfaces and morse tapers, and discovered just how many times you can reuse a latex glove. Thanks, Duane!

Come to the Community Center Feb 21st for a variety of “mini-demos” led by club members.

For Sale

I have a 2009 Eden Pure Gen3 Model 1000 quartz heater for sale. This heater has hardly been used It is perfect for cool bedrooms or basements. It would also work well in the shop. This heater is rated for 5000 BTUs. The heater was $400 new. Am looking to sell it for $250. If you are interested, call me at 608-783-0883 or 608-397-9526. You can also e-mail me at wisawdust@charter.net. I could bring the heater to the next meeting, if anyone is interested.

CRW Members,

Due to previous back and leg injuries, I find that I need to down size my lathe and how I do my turning work. I have listed what I paid for my gear and offered a $1500.00 credit if someone purchased the lot. Turning has become the love of my life (Besides Karen) and I will be sad to see it go. I have no complaints about the Lathe or the parts and pieces that will go with it. All that I have listed is sized for this lathe. It can handle making pens and 24 inch bowls. Also if you move the head stock to the other end you can turn 50 + Inches diameter bowls.

My intention will be to find a 16 inch sit down lathe where my leg can be propped up. That means my handsome portly stomach has to go also. Any ideas?????

This is approximately what I paid for the following parts shown on the photos.

1. 4224 PowerMatic Lathe - 7,500.00 (1 1/2 years old)
2. Bed Extension – 600.00
3. Roller Feet – 300.00
4. Tail Stock Twist Shift Assembly – 250.00
5. Carter Steady Rest Wheel Assembly – 600.00 - New
6. VicMark Chuck With Cole Jaws – 450.00 - New
7. Transport to your house (Tomah) and Set Up Charges - 400.00
8. One Way Coring Tool Assembly with 4 Knives - 845.00

Total Expense: $10,945.00

Cost savings $1,500.00 if purchased in total

Net Cost: $9,445.00

Thank you All
